Department of Library & Information Science

Organises

Repair, Restore, Rebuild & Rejuvenate Library Resources

A Workshop on Conservation Techniques

22–23 February 2019

About the Department

The Department of Library & Information Science is one of the oldest LIS Departments in the country. The Academic Programme of the Department commenced as a Diploma Course and later as BLIS and MLIS Degree Programmes. The changes in the IT environment led to restructured curricula into an integrated Two year PG Programme - M.Sc. in Library & Information Science; which in the year 2015-2016 was re-named as M.Lib.I.Sc. according to UGC notification. The PG Programme accommodates any graduate/post graduate to be qualified to find placements in all types of institutions in India and abroad. The Department is well equipped with full-fledged Computer Laboratory, Library and adequate infrastructure for research and teaching. Various programmes under the banner of Seminars/ Workshops/ Hands-on Training are organised every year.

About the Workshop

The deterioration of library materials is a major problem faced by library professionals. Conservation is the maintenance of documents in a usable condition through treatment and repair as well as to slow the process of decay and to restore them to their original state. This Workshop is intended to prepare Library Professionals to handle library resources and conserve with care. The Workshop aims to provide a hands-on experience on conservation techniques in the library environment.

Resource Person

A highly distinguished and accomplished person in the field of Library Conservation and Preservation – Dr. P. Perumal, Former Conservator & Librarian, Maharaja Serfoji's Sarasvati Mahal Library, Tanjavur, will deliver the lecture and conduct hands-on sessions.
